Cindy Lee's meticulous attention to detail and keen ability to recognize the impact of subtle nuances in a case make her an invaluable client advocate.

"My goal is to handle legal issues with care and precision in order to minimize disruption for clients while they navigate difficult periods of their lives."

Cindy discovered her interest in assisting families while working for City of Federal Way's Parks, Recreation, and Cultural Services Division where she was able to immerse herself in the community. This passion carried her through law school, where she gained invaluable experience as a summer associate in criminal investigations, solidifying her belief that law is about helping others. She also had the privilege as an honors student to clerk for a superior court judge, where she actively participated in case interpretation in the judge's chambers and learned the inner workings of a court system.

As a first-generation college and doctoral graduate, Cindy takes immense pride in her academic achievements. She understands firsthand the dedication and perseverance required to overcome obstacles and achieve one's goals.

Outside of her legal practice, Cindy enjoys working out, weightlifting, running, Korean music and television, and traveling. She hopes to have a dog of her own one day, but for now, she enjoys spoiling her sister's micro mini Bernedoodle named Dood.

"I personally felt that everyone involved in the case actually cared and enjoyed their job and were fighting for my rights. They definitely felt like family and treated me so."
